

PIRATES HELD UP BY PHOTOGRAPHER WHILE RAISING $20,000 FUND

It may be some time before Honolulu sees the delightfully blood-thirsty pirate crew of Bully Hayes again. One cannot be pirate every day. It would seriously interfere with the pirates' respectable business. Only on great occasions are the bright colors of the pirates' garb and their glistening blades to be seen here.

Last week there was such an occasion. It was the occasion of the Ad Club campaign to sell $20,000 of Mid-Pacific Carnival stock, and the fact that they sold a great deal more than that amount may be attributed, at least in part, to messrs. the pirates. To be sure they didn't canvass themselves; pirates are above that. But by this "threatening" men and their ever-ready blades—such as is evidenced by the held-up scene in one of the pictures published here—they induced men to part with money rather than their lives.

There were eleven pirates of the crew and also a pirate maid, Miss Fenella Miles, who appears in the upper left-hand picture. The following are the pirates as they appear in the lower picture:

Front row, left to right: G. S. Pereira, Jack D. Cleary, John Perry, C. H. W. Norton and H. D. Perry. These pirates were among the busiest of the busy Wednesday. They took the gold and the bank, they fired the cannon every time $2, was added to the total of stock subscription, and they cheered lustily at noon when the $20,000-mark had been reached.

And now, having accomplished what they started out to accomplish—and more too for that matter—the pirates have returned to the estate of law-abiding citizens, and Honolulu will not see them again perhaps until 1915 when they start forth to the Panama-Pacific Exposition, to kill or convince the world that Honolulu is the place to live.

Scenes of the Pirates on Carnival stock-selling day. In the center picture appears a group of Boy Scouts who kept a law-abiding eye on the Pirates and did great things for the success of the day. To both the Pirates and the Boy Scouts credit is given for making the day the success it was. Pirates as they appear in above pictures. HAWAII SUPERVISORS PRESENT RESOLUTIONS ON PROBE MATTER

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)

HILO, Jan. 9.—With a vote that is described as passively unanimous, the supervisors yesterday morning passed a resolution providing an appropriation of $3,000 for completing the audit of the county books. The resolution contains no clauses requiring a contract and it does not state the date by which the audit must be completed. Neither does it name who is to make the audit, this being a matter which will still have to be voted upon by the supervisors possibly some time today.

After the appropriation resolution was disposed of another was introduced by Supervisor Kauhanue which censures the probe commissioners and calls upon them to supply all data they have to the supervisors. This passed by a four to three vote, Lyman, Yates and Pritchard opposing it.

When the two resolutions were introduced an attempt was made to defer action, the supervisors who have all along favored the appropriation not being in sympathy with the censure resolution which they knew was to follow the other. The attempt to defer action failed and Chairman Ewaliko placed the matter before the Board and it carried.

The supervisors had a number of resolutions to consider introducing, there seemingly being as many as there are supervisors. One that was generally granted to be a fair compromise between the demands of the opponents of the commissioners and their upholders, was one requiring that the work be done in a stated time by Auditor Field, it naming the compensation that he was to receive until the work was completed. This was a resolution that originated in the camp of the Keoloha defense and it was understood that he was to introduce it. Much as some of the supervisors object to supporting anything introduced by Keoloha they thought this resolution superior to the others and with Keoloha's aid it would have carried.

At the last moment Keoloha "double crossed" his attorney and some of the supervisors and supported the other two resolutions. No explanation is given as to his motive except that his bondsman is reported to be opposed to Field and threatening to withdraw his security if John voted for anything that would give Field a job.

There is much speculation around the town and the county building as to what the four supervisors who have the controlling majority intend to do now. One rumor is that they will postpone selection of an auditor in an attempt to force the commissioners to give them certain data in their possession and another is that they have agreed to employ a Hilo man to finish the audit.

The resolution of the Hilo Board of Trade requesting that the appropriation be concluded and that the work be done by the commissioner's auditors was never read before the supervisors. Supervisor Pritchard introduced it as he had promised the Board of Trade members to do, but it was allowed to remain unread upon the desk of the clerk and chairman. When Pritchard demanded an explanation of Ewaliko as to why the business men's resolution was ignored, he was told that it was not addressed to the "Honorable Board of Supervisors" and hence was not in proper form. Pritchard retorted that it was a communication and that it did not have to be in the form prescribed by the chairman, but this was of no avail for it was after the other resolutions had been introduced through.

WORKS OF D. H. HITCHCOCK NOW ON EXHIBIT IN CITY

Admirers of the paintings of D. Howard Hitchcock have an opportunity now to see one of the most interesting exhibits he has given in Honolulu. Several dozen of his canvases are now on exhibit in the quarters of Q. A. Stevan, Fort and Queen streets, and they are attracting a large number of persons. Mr. Hitchcock has named Mr. Stevan as his representative in selling the paintings.

The entire artistic nature of the artist is shown in the paintings, his versatility has never been brought out with more emphasis. His marines and landscapes, upon which his artistic reputation has been so firmly fixed, show his unusual skill at putting on canvas the scenes of the mountains and ocean.

The men's committee of the Epiphany mission will meet in the mission hall, 10th and Palolo avenues, Kaimuki, Monday evening beginning at 7:30 o'clock.
